Winner of the Pulitzer Prize for General Nonfiction

In the Enemy's House is a gripping and eye-opening account of life inside the Taliban, from a Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist who spent months living among the insurgents. Anand Gopal embeds with the Taliban in Afghanistan, gaining unprecedented access to their leaders, fighters, and families. He travels with them as they launch attacks against American and Afghan forces, and he witnesses firsthand the brutality of their regime.

But Gopal also finds that the Taliban are not simply a monolithic group of fanatics. They are a complex and diverse movement, with a wide range of motivations and beliefs. He meets Taliban commanders who are fighting for what they believe is a just cause, and he encounters ordinary Afghans who have been drawn to the Taliban's message of hope and change. Gopal's nuanced and empathetic portrayal of the Taliban challenges our simplistic understanding of them as a terrorist organization.

In the Enemy's House is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the Taliban and the complex conflict in Afghanistan. Gopal's vivid writing and deep reporting provide a rare glimpse into the world of the enemy, and his insights offer a fresh perspective on one of the most pressing issues of our time.
